

I deal with LECs with regularity in my business. They have become extremely large and this has resulted in very poor customer service. Additionally, these companies are slow to address customer product needs in rural areas because profit margins are thin. This is where entrepreneurs and small business can provide a badly needed service at a competitive price with high quality customer service.